The PENNSYLVANIA GAZETTE.

Containing the Freſheſt Advices, Foreign and Domeſtic.

By Captain PARKER, arrived at New-London from Briſtol, we have the following Intelligence, viz.

COPENHAGEN, April 4.

LAST Tueſday Dr. Munter paſſed ſeven hours with Count Struenſee, who then wrote a letter to the Queen. After he had finiſhed it, he ſaid to that Eccleſiaſtic, "Now we will take in hand ſome affairs of the greateſt importance; I mean thoſe of my poor ſoul." His converſations with the officer of his guard always have the divine worſhip for their object.

Vienna, April 11. We have had remarkable fine weather here, for ſome time paſt, and the land promiſes plenty of every thing. The country gives us hopes of as abundant an harveſt of grain as has been for 20 years paſt.

Copenhagen, April 12. At length ſome particulars have tranſpired of what paſſed before the great Commiſſion on the 6th inſt. which day will be memorable in the hiſtory of this kingdom. The Queen Carolina is condemned to perpetual impriſonment, and conſequently her marriage with the King our Sovereign is nulled. Though the Court has not yet thought proper to publiſh this ſentence, it is nevertheleſs true. Counſellor Bang read the accuſations againſt the Queen, which ſeemed to be pretty numerous, as they filled four ſheets of paper. The Attorney General Uldahl ſpoke in favour of the accuſed party, and acquitted himſelf with ſo much eloquence in the cauſe of the young Queen, that he drew tears from the whole audience. The four following queſtions gave riſe to great debates among the Judges: 1ſt, How the divorce was to be performed? 2dly, What title the Queen ſhould have after the diſſolution of the marriage? 3dly, How to act with reſpect to the young Princeſs? 4thly, What penſion ſhould be allowed the Queen's impriſonment? The three ladies, who are to accompany the Queen in her impriſonment, which will probably be in the Caſtle of Aalbourg, are to engage by oath not to abſent themſelves from the priſon after eight o'clock in the evening in ſummer, and ſix in winter.

The whole court cannot but lament the fate of this unhappy Princeſs, who is not yet 21 years of age, and condemned to perpetual impriſonment. It is aſſured the King is going to viſit his German dominion, and that he will ſet out the 23d inſtant. We are impatient to know the fate of the other ſtate priſoners, to whom the preſent circumſtances ſeem to preſage nothing very favourable.

Mr. Keith having expreſſed a deſire to return home, was anſwered that he might go whenever he thought proper. At the ſame time a courier was diſpatched to Baron Dieden for his recal. It is ſaid this Miniſter is ordered to declare to the Britiſh Court, that the Queen will be permitted to return to her own country, upon condition, that ſhe will give ſecurity never to ſet foot again in Denmark.

Paris, April 17. The Porte has conſented to the following conditions: 1. That the holding of a congreſs ſhould be no longer delayed. 2. That this congreſs ſhould be held in Walachia. 3. That the Danube ſhould ſerve as a boundary to both armies during the congreſs. 4. That in caſe the negotiations for peace ſhould prove fruitleſs, the armiſtice ſhould nevertheleſs continue for the ſpace of three months, reckoning from the day of the breaking up of the congreſs.

LONDON, April 14.

The Scarcity is ſo great in Norway, that the Peaſants are driven to eat even the Bark of Trees, and in the Towns the Artiſans are driven to ſtill greater Straits.

Within theſe few days an information has been given, by which it appears that a certain noted monopolizing corn factor has hoarded ſuch immenſe quantities of that article, that a great part of it is ſo conſumed and ſpoiled by Vermin, that Hogs are now fed with what the poor have been long ſtarving for want of.

April 16. A noble Lord has declared, that a war with both France and Spain cannot be avoided many months longer.

A letter from Cadiz ſays, that 6000 troops, with a ſuitable quantity of military ſtores, &c. embarked in Cadiz Bay, on the 26th ult. for South-America.

Since laſt ſummer no fewer than ſeven veſſels have been ſeized by the Spaniards off Cuba, on pretence of illicit trade.

The progreſs of Spain's inſulting behaviour to Great-Britain is worthy of remark. They begun gently, and have ſince gradually aſcended, till they at laſt bit us directly in the teeth. The firſt ſtep was excluding Britiſh ſhips from Carthagena, on the flimſy pretence of an illicit trade. The ſecond attempt was at Cadiz, where they dared to fire on a Britiſh veſſel, and mal-treat its maſter, with his Majeſty's commiſſion in his pocket. They then ſeized ſeveral Engliſh ſailors, in different ports, on various frivolous pretences, and confined them in priſon, where they ſtill (to the eternal diſgrace of Britain) remain.

Extract of a letter from the Hague, April 17.

"According to the laſt advices from Copenhagen, the Attorney-General having drawn up the charge againſt the Queen Carolina Matilda, and delivered it to the Committee of Enquiry; and the Queen's defence being likewiſe produced, Commiſſioners were ſent with both of them to Cronenbourg to ſhew them to the Queen; her Majeſty received them very amicably.

"Some letters received from Berlin adviſe, that 6000 Auſtrian troops have paſſed the Frontiers of Poland, and entered into that kingdom, in order probably to bring the Confederates to their duty, the negotiation for a peace between the Ruſſians and Turks being very far advanced."

April 23. The fleet that were to rendezvous in the Downs, ſuppoſed deſigned for the Baltic, are countermanded. Ships of war will be kept in readineſs, in caſe any circumſtance ſhould ariſe to render ſuch a meaſure neceſſary.

The Parliament will riſe the 21ſt of May.

Jonathan Britain, who is now at Sherburne, to take his trial at the next Seſſions, declares in the moſt ſolemn manner, that he will ſeal the truth of his teſtimony relative to the fire at Portſmouth with his blood---that all he requires is a public hearing on the affair, and if he cannot prove every tittle of his information, he is content, and will chearfully ſubmit to any puniſhment he may be thought to deſerve---that if any Gentleman of Character will inſure him a hearing either at the bar of the Houſe of Commons, or in a public Court of Juſtice, he will deliver up all his papers into their hands.---But, a correſpondent ſays, it is too evident that the preſent trial for petty forgeries is deſigned to ſuppreſs an enquiry into the great National Concern, the Portſmouth Conflagration.

It is currently reported at the Weſt end of the town, that Lord North, after the riſing of Parliament, will be called up to the houſe of Peers, and reſign his preſent employment.

The Queen of Denmark, we hear, by a letter which comes from the Britiſh Miniſter at Copenhagen, has never once loſt her fortitude in the midſt of all the dangers that ſurrounded her; though a woman, and a very young one, ſhe ſtill maintained all the dignity of her rank, and determined to die at leaſt with heroiſm, if ſhe could not live with reputation.

Accounts from Corſica inform us of a moſt cruel war being carried on in that iſland between the French and miſerable natives; a war reſembling the hunting parties of ſavages on one ſide, and the brutal reſiſtance of enraged beaſts of prey on the other; who, as ſoon as thoſe bloody conflicts are over, retreat again to their dens, caverns, and inacceſſible fortreſſes.

We can aſſure the public, that an experiment is ſhortly to be made of a machine, invented by Dr. Dominiceti, of Cheſſea, by which he engages to prove that proviſions may be dreſſed for one thouſand perſons, in 3 hours time, with leſs fire than is commonly uſed in a parlour grate, and in all the various methods of cookery. It is ſaid to be conſtructed on the moſt ſimple principle, and to be one of the moſt ingenious and uſeful inventions ever ſeen in this kingdom.

April 25. A letter from Copenhagen by yeſterday's mail ſays, That the trial of the Queen is over; ſhe is confined in the Caſtle at Aalbourg, to bear the title of Majeſty, and her children are declared legitimate. Her Majeſty is allowed to take the diverſions of the country under a guard, but not to cohabit with the King. Count Struenſee and Count Brandt are found guilty; the former will be executed, and the latter baniſhed.

We are well aſſured, that notwithſtanding the ſeeming ſlowneſs of a Great Perſonage to undertake the cauſe of an illuſtrious young lady of his own family, his firſt addreſs to his Miniſter, after receiving the news of her confinement, was, "Save her honour, ſave her life, and do what you pleaſe with your maſter."

Lord North, in a converſation which he lately had with a Great Perſonage, made uſe of the following expreſſion, which deſerves everlaſting remembrance: "Peace, Sir, is the greateſt bleſſing your people can enjoy, beſides liberty and honour; and it ſhall be my perpetual ſtudy to ſecure it, while it can be obtained conſiſtently with their freedom and their reputation."

April 27. The Duke of Cumberland wrote a ſpirited letter to an auguſt perſonage, requeſting he might be ſent with the ſquadron lately fitting out for ſea; and, as far as lay in his power, acquit himſelf of the ſervice he owed to his Sovereign and to his country.

It is certain that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland applied to his M-----y for the command of the ſquadron fitting out for the Baltic, but his requeſt was rejected at the inſtigations of Lord Sandwich, in conjunction with the Mansfield junto.

A coolneſs, it is ſaid, has for ſeveral days paſt been viſible between a Great Perſonage and an illuſtrious viſitor, who takes up his occaſional reſidence amongſt us; the cauſe is, however, at preſent, an impenetrable ſecret.

An order has been lately iſſued out by the French commandant, at Dunkirk, which obliges all the Engliſh ſubjects, many of whom are of good character, and in capital buſineſs, to leave that place immediately.

By letters received on Saturday laſt from Northamptonſhire, and other counties in the very center of the kingdom, we are informed, that the poorer ſort of people are ſtarving in the midſt of plenty. Wheat bread they never taſte of, wheat being nine ſhillings per buſhel, but eat barley bread. Mutton and beef are ſix-pence per pound, and butter nine-pence. God knows how theſe melancholy affairs will end, under the reign of the beſt of Kings.

On Friday night a meſſenger arrived from his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, whoſe advice was directly laid before his Majeſty, and on Saturday morning the ſame meſſenger was ſent back with an anſwer.

On Wedneſday afternoon one of the ſlaters at work at the top of Kew-houſe, unfortunately fell, and was killed on the ſpot; his Majeſty being a ſpectator of this accident, has ordered his wife, with ſeveral children, to be taken care of at his expence, and to be properly provided for.

Saturday laſt a woman who kept a cook's ſhop in Bread St. Giles's, having ſome words with a man, ſhe ſtabbed him to the heart with a carving-knife, which killed him inſtantly; ſhe was immediately ſecured.

Letter from an English Gentleman at the Danish Court; an attentive Observer of what has been passing there ever since the Marriage of the present King.

SIR,

BEFORE this can reach London, you will, undoubtedly, have heard of the sudden change that has happened in the Court of Denmark. This comes by favour of Capt. T------, as it is unsafe to write of what passes here by the ordinary post.

You must know, Sir, that, ever since the marriage of the reigning King, but more particularly since the birth of the young Prince, the Dowager-Queen, second Consort to the late King, despairing of seeing the Crown descend to her son Frederic (now in his 19th Year) by lineal succession, has been plotting the ruin of the reigning family, by every artifice her active genius could suggest. She is, in truth, a woman of consummate policy, and has the art of covering the worst designs, under the mask of the most acceptable services.

She began very early to practice upon the young Queen, and by counterfeiting, at the first interview, a real maternal fondness for her amiable person, she took advantage of her Majesty's youth and inexperience, and ensnared her by deceit. Her dissimulation has all along been carried on with an air of openness and kindness that gained her entire confidence; and, by her ascendency over the Queen's conduct, she has directed measures in such an unpopular manner, as to make her the chief instrument of her own undoing.

It was, indeed, visible enough, to some who were nearest her person, that, from the moment the Queen was welcomed into Denmark by the acclamations of a joyful people, the Dowager conceived a jealousy of her popularity. It was, however, to no purpose to counsel her to be upon her guard; she never could be persuaded to suspect the sincerity of a mother, who, by her assiduities, gave daily proof of her affectionate regard.

The Dowager found the Queen passionately fond of the fashionable diversions of the English nation, and it was her only foible to pay too slight an attention to the genius and manners of the Danish people. The Dowager encouraged her in her attachment to the one, and in the disregard she was but too apt to shew to the other. At the same time her policy was such, that, while she flattered her Majesty's vanity by applauding her elegance and taste, she was in secret fomenting a party against her, and insinuating, that the Queen had nothing at heart but imitating foreign splendor, and amusing herself with foreign entertainments,----entertainments calculated, indeed, to captivate the minds of giddy youth, but of the most pernicious tendency to corrupt their morals; that she despised the simplicity and plainness of the Danish Court, and would in time cause English levity, and English libertinism, to triumph over the opposite virtues for which the Court of Denmark had ever been respected.

By these insinuations she first poisoned the minds of her select friends, who only whispered their discontent to their confidants; but, as soon as the Prince was born, and the King had made his tour to England, reports of a like or worse tendency were circulated with unbridled freedom, all over the kingdom. Every motion and every action of the King and Queen was then narrowly watched; and those measures, which the Dowager countenanced and encouraged by her subtlety at Court, she had the audacity to disapprove and condemn to those whom she knew seldom or never frequented it.

Men do not, in this country, so frequently attend the accouchment of ladies as in England. The physician, who presided at the birth of the Prince, by his care and assiduities during that critical period, very naturally attracted the notice of the Queen. He became a favourite of the King; and, being a gentleman by birth and by profession, insensibly grew into familiarity about the palace. Sovereigns have not always the discretion to preserve the dignity of supreme power, by keeping those with whom they are daily conversant at a proper distance. This Gentleman was, however, the more acceptable, as he was useful in two respects, and served both as a physician and linguist to the Queen, who, not being mistress of the language of the people over whom she was destined to reign, was more than ordinary solicitous to acquire that qualification, with a view to render her conversation more general, as well as more pleasing to those who casually came about the Court.

The Dowager did not fail, when the proper opportunity offered, to interpret this innocent familiarity into the most scandalous and infamous correspondence, and to whisper, among her party, that the intercourse between St-----e and the Queen might be traced in the features of the young Princess. Happy it was for the Queen, and it may be for the whole nation, that the prying eye of malice could never discover the least blemish in her Majesty's deportment before the birth of the young Prince; for, though the atrociousness of the crime caused the calumny to be received with abhorence, when first it was insinuated, yet the balls and masquerades that had been promoted and countenanced, and the consequences that had been predicted to follow, happening just as the Dowager formerly foretold, the gravest matrons about the Court, who are ever most readily disposed to credit the worst, did not hesitate to pronounce, that there was but too much room for suspicion, since balls and masquerades, and other licentious entertainments, were the Queen's favourite amusements, and since infidelity to husbands, among persons of condition in England, was so frequent, it was hardly held a crime. Thus, what at first was utterly disbelieved, and could hardly be endured without visible resentment, even by her worst enemies, took air at last among the multitude, and was currently reported in every village.

All this while the Dowager had the address to carry on her plot without being suspected even by those with whom she was most intimate. Her discourse, at the time she was suggesting the worst practices, was always tempered with seeming concern for the young Sovereigns; and, while she was dispensing the poisonous pill, she was crafty enough to gild it over with a golden leaf. This duplicity in her behaviour gave her an opportunity of frequenting the Court without suspicion; and, while every body thought she was employed in stifling the evil reports which herself had raised, (though she always gave out such things were told to her) she was in fact the chief instrument in spreading them.

The depth of her policy will hardly meet with credit from those who are not conversant in court intrigues; yet it may be, in some measure, penetrated by a short retrospect to her past conduct. No one was more forward than the Dowager in applauding the curiosity of the King to visit England, the nation of whose manners he had heard so much, and with whose Sovereign he was so intimately connected, both as a brother and an ally. She even pressed him to undertake the journey, and named the noblemen whom she judged the most proper to attend him: These were persons of inflexible fidelity to his person, and who, she knew, would be most acceptable to his Majesty to accompany him. Her views may be easily discerned in advising the one, and nominating and recommending the other. By the latter, she removed from the kingdom the great enemies to her projects; and, by the former, she acquired the greater freedom to set her incendiary engines to work, and to supply them with fuel to keep them in full play.

The Physician St----see, who had quitted his ordinary practice, was by the King's favour advanced to the peerage, and was now wholly employed at Court. In the absence of the King the Government of the kingdom was, in a great measure, committed to his care, and he had many private conferences with the Queen on the affairs of state. In one of these, it is said, he hinted to her Majesty his suspicions of the Dowager; but she never would believe her capable of harm, and rejected his advice with manifest dislike.

Among other arts the Dowager made use of, while his Majesty remained abroad, it was a masterpiece to infuse into the Queen's mind a jealousy of the King. To do this, his Majesty's long absence furnished her with a favourable opportunity. She even named the persons with whom his Majesty had formed connections; and was so particular in mentioning times and circumstances, that the Queen could not entertain the least doubt of the truth of the intelligence: And altho' she behaved, on this occasion, with a dignity and firmness superior to her sex, never giving the most distant hint in any of her letters to the King while abroad; yet his Majesty could not help discerning on his return home, a kind of reserve in the Queen that was not natural to her, though, at that time, he attributed it to quite another cause.

This stroke of female policy laid the foundation of every evil that has since overwhelmed the unhappy Queen. It paved the way, in every respect, to facilitate the purpose which the Dowager intended by it. It made the King more easily susceptible of the bad suggestions that were afterwards to be infused. It gave him a suspicion of the officers who attended him, as if they had misrepresented his conduct while abroad, and had reported something to his disadvantage, which had reached the ears of the Queen. And it has given the people reason to conclude, that the Queen had formed, in his absence, that odious connection which has since been laid to her charge."

Dublin, April 4. The army lately sent to the North, under the command of Gen. Gisbourne, to quell the insurgents, are quartered in 46 towns and villages, by which means the rioters dare not appear armed.

LONDON.

April 21. We hear that Lord Cathcart will soon be recalled from the Court of Petersburgh.

An additional number of the military, we are told, is to be stationed for the future in the North of Ireland, to prevent disturbance.

We are assured that it is owing to the truly political conduct of his Prussian Majesty, that the Emperor of Germany has not taken part with the Turks this spring.

Orders were last week sent to Ireland, for the strictest guard to be kept, to hinder the raising of recruits by the French and Spanish emissaries, which are now said to be swarming in that kingdom.

An edict was published at Copenhagen the 9th instant by his Danish Majesty, strictly commanding, upon severe penalties therein mentioned, the immediate return of such of his subjects as are mariners, and in the service of foreign powers.

April 23. The Empress of Russia has demanded of the Nobles in her dominions, a free gift of ten per cent. from the produce of their estates, for the purpose of defraying the expences of the war with the Turks.

One day last week, in an interview that passed between the English Minister and the Spanish Ambassador, the former demanded of the latter, categorically, whether there was any real foundation for the various reports circulated of the warlike preparations making in the different parts of their dominions; and to this his Lordship required an honest and explicit answer. To which the Ambassador immediately replied, "that it was true his Royal master was making preparations throughout his dominions, but that they were not WARLIKE; that he only intended to establish his naval and marine forces on a respectable footing, and to keep them so for the future."---This he affirmed upon his honour.

The men of war destined for Newfoundland, are to have an additional quantity of men, who are to be employed in manning sloops, and other small vessels, for the better protection of that trade.

April 28. This day the House of Commons met pursuant to their last adjournment; and on Thursday the Right Hon. the House of Peers will meet pursuant to their last adjournment.

No less than three expresses arrived yesterday at St. James's, from Sir Robert Murray Keith at Copenhagen.

It is said the ministry have received a printed account of the trial of the Queen, and an explicit detail of all the late disturbances in Denmark, with their causes, the reasons for confining the Queen, &c. which, it is hoped, for the satisfaction of many thousands, they will immediately publish.

Colonel Pens is appointed grand master of the household to the young Queen of Denmark; and his regiment of cavalry is ordered to be stationed in the neighbourhood of the castle of Aalbourg, the place destined for the residence of that Princess.

We are informed that it is stipulated, that the sum determined to be annually allowed the Queen Consort of Denmark (which is 40,000 dollars) shall be expended within the dominions of his Danish Majesty; and in case she should return to England, that she shall be presented with 10,000 dollars, and the annual appointment cease.

Extract of a letter from Warsaw, April 8.

"Yesterday the Russian Ambassador received an express from Jassy, and we hear the congress will soon be opened there, as several great houses are already taken for the Ministers. The Turks would rather have had it at Bucharest; and they seem now to be in earnest about this great work."

There is no occasion for a war with Denmark. The Danes are so sensible of our superior strength, that they will grant us every thing from the apprehensions of a war, which we could possibly obtain by actual hostilities.

His Majesty now heartily repents of having lived so long at variance with his subjects. He would willingly go to war with the Danes, to vindicate the honour of his sister. But he knows the nation would not back him. This must ever be the condition of a limited Monarch, who sets his people at defiance.

We hear that the divorce which has taken place between the King and Queen of Denmark is very satisfactory to the latter, and to her family; and that no farther punishment will be inflicted on her; and that there will be no rupture between this kingdom and that of Denmark, provided no further ill treatment be offered to the Queen Matilda.

From Madrid we hear, that their American dominions are so plentifully stored with all manner of European goods, that in case of war (which is universally looked for there very soon, though they know not with what power) nothing will be wanted for a very long space of time.

They write from the Hague, that his Prussian Majesty has at this time an army consisting of 50,000 infantry, and 7,000 cavalry, fit for immediate action.

Many a man has made his fortune by marriages. If the King of Denmark goes on as he has begun, he will probably do the same. He got, if we remember right, 100,000 l. with his wife. He now offers her in return 10,000 dollars, that is about 2000 l. so that he will clear by the match 98,000 l. a pretty round sum! Few men, we believe, however averse to matrimony, would refuse to take a wife for two or three years upon the same conditions.

The advices from Copenhagen say, that six spacious apartments in the castle of Aalbourg are to be allotted for the Queen of Denmark, and that there is to be a kind of Court kept up there, under certain limitations.

An anecdote---Several of the Clergy complaining to the Bishop of ------, at his visitation, of the progress and success of certain Methodist Preachers; his Lordship replied, The most effectual way, gentlemen, of silencing them, will be, to out live, out preach them.

The appeal between a Nobleman and Mr. Penn, which took up several days before a Committee of the Privy Council, at Whitehall, relative to the property of a place called Mill-Island, on the River Delaware, near Philadelphia, is determined in favour of the latter.

BOSTON, June 25.

We hear that the 14*th Regiment, now at Castle William, with two other regiments, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Dalrymple, are speedily to embark on a secret expedition.*

We hear that our honourable House of Commons have received a letter from Governor Tryon, in which he offers to divide the disputed lands between the two provinces, and thus to settle the line of division between us.----Query, Is it in the power of any mortal, King, Lords, Commons, or any other person, or persons, to subject me, an inhabitant of this province, to any other jurisdiction but this where I have a right to remain by compact?

It is said that the Nettleham Baronet has had a repeated shake of the palsy, and has no hopes of recovery.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.

On Friday, the Third Instant, departed this Life, after a short Illness, Miss NELLY MONTGOMERY, in the Nineteenth Year of her Age; a young Lady of an agreeable Person, remarkable Sweetness of Temper, and a handsome Fortune. To these was added, a most engaging Department; which, nevertheless, were not sufficient to avert the fatal Stroke of Death, that relentless Ravager of the human Race. Her unexpected Fate, at so early a Period, and especially the Suddenness of it, while it is truly a heavy Affliction to her Relatives and Friends, is a striking Instance of the Brevity and Uncertainty of human Life, and the Transitoriness of all its Enjoyments; and shews the Necessity and Importance of an early Piety, which alone can insure permanent Happiness, or a Life that will last for ever; since the Young, as well as Old, are often cut off at a very short Warning by that daily insatiable Devourer of our Species, whose cold Hand soon despoils the most beauteous Form, and renders it fit only to be deposited in the silent Dust; a Consideration which might be of infinite Consequence, if duly improved.----In order to which, I would recommend Dr. Young's Night Thoughts, in which he justly says;

Death loves a shining Mark, a signal Blow;
A Blow, which, while it executes, alarms,
And startles Thousands with a single Fall.
He call'd Narcissa long before her Hour;
He call'd her tender Soul, by Break of Bliss,
From the first Blossom, from the Buds of Joy;
Those few our noxious Fate unblasted leaves,
In this inclement Clime of human Life.
This Harvest reap then from Narcissa's Grave,
Let Wisdom blossom from the mortal Wound;
And first of dying Friends; What Fruit from these?
It brings us more than triple Aid; an Aid
To chase our Thoughtlessness, Fear, Pride and Guilt.
Beware what Earth calls Happiness, beware
All Joys, but Joys that never can expire;
Who builds on less than an immortal Base,
Fond as he seems, condemns his Joys to Death.

Her Remains were interred on Sunday Morning in the Presbyterian Church Burying ground, in Arch-street, attended by a great Number of the most respectable Inhabitants of this City.

Yesterday Captain Leaycraft, arrived here in three Weeks from Saltertuda, at which Place he left Captain Matlin, in a Sloop bound to New-York, who was to sail about 10 Days after him. Captain Leaycraft informs, that the Spanish Guarda Costas, having lately taken 2 or 3 Coracoa Men, who were trading on the Main, they had fitted out a stout Sloop, mounted with 12 Carriage Guns, to go in Search of them, and it was said she had a smart Skirmish with one of them, but the Particulars were not come to hand when he sailed.

MOST reſpectfully offers his beſt ſervices, and acquaints them, that he may be conſulted at his houſe, the corner of Fifth and Market-ſtreets, in this city, in all diſorders of the eye and its appendages; and in every ſpecies of deafneſs, hardneſs of hearing, ulcerations, noiſe in the ears, &c. Since his arrival in this city (in November, 1771) upwards of three hundred and ſeventy patients have been cured or relieved of the following diſorders, many of which had been of very long ſtanding, and deemed altogether incurable by other practitioners, viz. Total and partial blindneſs; weakneſs and diminution of ſight; pain, ſwelling, and inflammation of the eyes; weak, watery, red, ſpongy, and ulcerated eye-lids, involuntary weeping of the tears; tumours and excreſſences; fiſtul. lachrym.---Total and periodical deafneſs; thickneſs of hearing; pain and inflammations, cracking, itching, continual and remitting noiſes and ſounds in the ears; offenſive runnings, occaſioned by colds, ſwelling, ſwimming, picking and improper applications, long and ſevere ſickneſs; ulcerations, with caries of the bones; polypi, &c. and ſeveral perſons born deaf and dumb, who have made conſiderable advances in ſpeaking and hearing; inſomuch, that perfect cures will probably be effected.

Thoſe perſons whoſe eyes are utterly periſhed, or ſunk in their heads, may have the deformity removed by glaſs eyes, ſo curiouſly adapted to the orbits, as not to be diſtinguiſhed from the natural. The Doctor propoſes to leave this city, in the beginning of May, 1773. Thoſe, therefore, who have occaſion for his aſſiſtance, are deſired to apply as ſoon as poſſible.

A NEAT and General Aſſortment of MERCHANDIZE, ſuitable for the Season. 6 W.

To the PUBLIC.

THE Loſs the Scheme, for promoting The CULTURE of SILK, ſuſtained laſt Year, by buying unkilled for killed Cocoons, and giving the ſame Price thro' the Season, rendered it neceſſary for the Managers to endeavour to come at ſome more equitable Manner of purchaſing, than they had hitherto been in the Practice of. Experience taught them that Cocoons, where Worms or Grubs are perfectly killed, are much lighter than before; and afterwards, if they are kept in a dry Place, as they ought to be, they will diminiſh in Weight from Week to Week, till they are reduced to near one Third of their original Weight. Nevertheleſs the only uſeful Part, to wit, the Thread of Silk, is equally long and heavy, in theſe different Degrees of Dryneſs. Theſe Reaſons induced them to offer the following Prices, namely, for all merchantable Cocoons, brought to the Filature before the 15th of July, 3s. per Pound; from the 15th to the 25th, 3s. 6d. from the 25th to the 5th of Auguſt, 4s. from the 5th to the 25th, 4s. 6d. and from thence to the End of the Season, 5s. but if extraordinary good, and very dry, 5s. 6d. provided they are all of the firſt Crop.

N. B. The Managers will ſhortly publiſh the Premiums they intend to give.
